

Family Behavioral
Resources
Presents

FREE

7th Annual Autism Awareness Night

“From Science to Practice: Autism in Western Pennsylvania”

John J. McGonigle, PhD and Nancy Minshew, MD

Dr. John McGonigle is the Director of the Western Pennsylvania Regional ASERT in the Center for Autism and Developmental Disorders at Western Psychiatric Institute and Clinic in Pittsburgh. Dr. McGonigle currently holds the rank of Assistant Professor of Psychiatry and Rehabilitation Science Technology in the Department of Psychiatry, at the University Of Pittsburgh School Of Medicine. His areas of specialization are in the assessment and treatment of individuals with Developmental Disabilities and Neuropsychiatric Disorders across the Lifespan.

Dr. Nancy Minshew is currently director of the NIH Autism Center of Excellence supporting innovative research on underlying mechanisms of autism and on developing novel interventions. She is also director of the Pittsburgh Autism Treatment Network site, which is one of 14 ATNs developed by Autism Speaks to establish standards of care for the medical aspects of autism. The ATN network is completing its second year and with it a number of practice guidelines, which are now being piloted. The ATN also has many small research studies directed at problems confronting families such as sleep difficulties and nutritional-diet issues.

April 1, 2010

6:30 pm—9:00 pm

The Doubletree Hotel
Monroeville, PA

Please RSVP at

autismservices@familybehavioralresources.com

or call

724-850-8118, Ext. 25 Local Phone

1-866-4-FBR-ASD Toll Free Phone

On-Site Respite Care Provided
(Reservation Required)